

Devereux-Blum Training and Development Limited is a training provider delivering training/consultancy services in New Zealand. Working in partnership with the Ministry of Emergency Management and Civil Defence. This company has been contracted to deliver three key courses for people which are Basic Instructional Technique, General Rescue Trainer Assessment and Urban Search and Rescue USAR Awareness Trainer. This is to ensure the level of training occurring in New Zealand is to a standard of excellence. Devereux-Blum training also delivers a wide range of training/consultancy throughout New Zealand for government, non-government and community groups.

These three courses are run nationally for professionals and volunteers. Basic Instructional Technique is a two-day course introducing potential and current rescue trainers to adult learning theory and practice. General Rescue Trainer Assessment is a two-day event, which is the formal assessment for those seeking General Rescue Trainer Certification. USAR Awareness Trainer Course is a two-day course, which gives an overview on how to deliver the USAR Awareness training package and provides formal trainer assessment.

Project Description

Project: Ministry of Civil Defence and Emergency Management Professional Development

Location: New Zealand

Client: Councils Response teams/ staff and other people working in General Rescue and Urban Search & Rescue

Total Project Value: Confidential

Start Date: January 2003

End Date: November 2005

Lead Company: Devereux-Blum Training and Development

Associated Consultants: None

Key Features:

- In accordance with Best practice Guideline:
Trainer Certificate